

ANNE SEIBEL, PRODUCTION DESIGNER

Anne Seibel is a French Production Designer who had the good fortune to design "Midnight in Paris" for Woody Allen. The film was his most successful in 25 years and Anne was nominated for an Oscar for Best Achievement in Art Direction. The film won Woody his third Oscar for Best Writing for Screenplay. She also designed his latest film, "To Rome With Love," which just opened the 2012 Los Angeles Film Fest.

Anne began her career working as an Art Director on American productions that filmed abroad in France. Most notably, she worked on Clint Eastwood's "Hereafter," Steven Spielberg's "Munich," Sophia Coppola's "Marie Antoinette" and David Frankel's "The Devil Wears Prada."

Anne has keen sensibilities and is an innovative and creative collaborator. She attended Ecole Speciale d'Architecture, DESA in Paris and has a degree in Architecture from the prestigious school.